The Spanish vessels wrecked in battle by the naval vessels of the United States during the war with Spain, and now lying along the coast of Cuba, are the property of the United States. That island being now temporarily within the jurisdiction of the United States, the Secretary of the Treasury, under section 3765, Revised Statutes, has power to make such provision for the sale or other disposition of such wrecked vessels as he may deem necessary. Section 3755 applies as well to wrecks which are the property of the United States as to the vessels of private owners which have been wrecked, abandoned, or become derelict. The acts of June 14, 1880 (21 Stat. , 197), and August 2, 1882 ( 22 Stat. , 20), which authorize the Secretary of War to remove sunken vessels or craft which obstruct the navigation of a navigable water of the United States, do not apply to the coastal waters of Cuba, as such waters do not become waters of the United States by reason of the temporary jurisdiction of the United States over that island. Department Of Justice, March 29 1900. Sir: Referring to your communication of the 17th instant, relative to the Spanish vessels lying aground along the shores of Cuba, you inform me that after making costly efforts to raise such of said vessels as were thought to be worth repairing and to recover from them articles of value...
