But it has been suggested that there are so many newly formed teams and inexperienced players that a few words of explanation upon such points would be of interest and value, and old players will therefore pardon what may appear trite in the next few pages. A beginner in foot-ball should do two things. He should read the rules and he should, if possible, watch the practice. If the latter be impossible he and his mates must, after having read the rules, start in and, with eleven men on a side, play according to their own interpretation of these rules. When differences of opinion arise as to the meaning of any rule, a letter addressed to some one of the players upon...
