Excerpt: .but when eleven o clock had struck, and still he had seen no one, he could no longer resist the feeling of hunger, and seizing a chicken, he ate it up in two mouthfuls, trembling the while. Then he took a draught or two of wine, and, his courage returning, he left the dining-hall and made his way through several large rooms magnificently furnished. Finally he came to a room where there was a comfortable bed, and as it was now H past midnight, and he was very tired, he made up his mind to shut the door and lie down. It was ten o clock next morning before he awoke, when, to his great surprise, he found new clothes put in place of his own, which had been completely spoiled. This palace must certainly belong to some good fairy, he said to himself, who, seeing my condition, has taken pity upon me. He looked out of the window; the snow was gone, and he saw instead, bowers of delicious flowers which were a delight to the eye. He went again into the dining-hall where he had supped the night before, and saw a little table with chocolate upon it. I thank you, good madam fairy, he said aloud, for your kindness in thinking of my breakfast. The merchant, having drunk his chocolate, went out to find his horse; as he passed under a bower of roses, he remembered that Beauty had asked him...
