Not illustrated. 1875 Excerpt: . paid, and if this interest does not accrue upon the bonds, then there is no foundation for it. It appears to me that the distinction taken on behalf of the State of Maryland, between the coupon and the interest thereon, is at war with the repeated adjudications of the Supreme Court of the United States. It is admitted that the interest is due because the coupou is unpaid, and that it grows out of the coupon, and that the coupon is covered by the lien; but it is insisted that the company must pay this interest on the coupons after satisfying the State of Maryland. However, it may be said that the coupons were not presented at the place where they were payable, or that there is no allegation that they were so presented. According to well-established rules of law, the maker of the note must show that he had funds at the place of payment, or that the paper was payable nowhere else, before he can be exonerated from interest, or he must show a tender. And it is admitted in the answer that the company suspended payment for many years for want of funds, and if resumption was had it was their duty to notify the fact. If the maker deposits Corcoran vs. Chesapeake and Ohio Canal Co. et al. funds at the place of payment to meet the demand, then he is exempted from interest, otherwise he must hunt up the holder...
