INFANT MORTALITY AND ITS ADMINISTRATIVE CONTROL (CLASSIC REPRINT)

Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Infant Mortality and Its Administrative Control The death of a child appeals in a peculiar way to the emotional side of human nature. Reason may satisfy us that the loss of a young man in the spring-time of his powers or of an adult during the period of full mental and physical vigour is really a greater tragedy, but we seem all of us, at least in the abstract, more touched by the pathos of death at the beginning of life. Most recall with tenderness the lines of Vergil: - Continuo auditae voces vagitus et ingens Infantumque animae flentes in limine primo, Quos dulcis vitae exsortis et ab ubere raptos Abstulit atra dies et funerc mersit acerbo. There was a time when a high rate of infant mortality seemed part of the settled order of the universe; a view expressed with his usual precision by T. R. Malthus, over a hundred years ago. And yet when we contemplate the insufficiency of the price of labour to maintain a large family, and the amount of mortality which arises directly and indirectly from poverty; and add to this the crowds of children which are cut off prematurely in our great towns, our manufactories, and our workhouses, we shall be compelled to acknowledge that if the number born annually were not greatly thinned by this premature mortality, the funds for the maintenance of labour must increase with much greater rapidity than they have ever done hitherto in this country in order to find work and food for the additional numbers that would then grow up to manhood.
