GRIN Verlag. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 28 pages. Dimensions: 8.3in. x 5.6in. x 0.2in. Essay from the year 2006 in the subject Politics - International Politics - Region: Near East, Near Orient, grade: 2, 0, Marmara University, course: Turkish Foreign Policy, 7 entries in the bibliography, language: English, abstract: After the military takeover in 1960, Turkey was endowed with a new constitution in 1961 that provided guarantees of freedom of thought, expression, association and publication, and other civil liberties. These changes allowed for the first time in Turkish history for the creation of a socialist party, and the Workers Party of Turkey (WPT) was established in that same year. The party won 14 seats in the 1965 Assembly and had an oppositional role. Leftist youth movements emerged and soon became radical. They were promoted by student discussion groups (Fikir Kibler), radical journalism and the world-wide radicalism of youth in the late 1960s. On the other hand, Turkish governments during that period took for the first time some foreign policy steps independent of the United States, notably in the case of Cyprus. The Demirel government found itself under frequent attack by his political opponents for being too pro-American, as anti-American sentiments in Turkish society surged. This essay deals with the question to what extent the Turkish Left did exert its influence on the conduct of Turkish foreign policy during the period from the 1961 constitution to the 1971 memorandum of the military that forced Demirel to resign. Therefore, the Turkish leftist party and movement, and Turkish foreign relations in the period chosen will be analyzed and brought into a broader context. This item ships from multiple locations.
